

I used to get 2-3 sales calls a day covering all sorts of things. I had to buy an answering machine to cut down of my invilvement with these calls. A few companies would actually leave messages on my machine and then call again day after day to find out why I hadn't returned their calls.

Since I signed up for the 'do not call' list I don't get sales calls anymore. If I want to buy something I'll go buy it.

The only bothersome calls I get now are from the Red Cross - telling me that I have to show up here or there to give blood, whether I want to or not - and the Police Benevolent League. If you can stop these calls also I'd be grateful.
